Ways of Committing Suicide.

Wearing thin shoes on damp nights in rainy weather.

Building on the "air-tight principle."

Leading a life of enfeebling, stupid laziness, and keeping the mind in a round of unnatural excitement by reading trashy novels.

Going to balls in all kinds of weather, in the thinnest possible dress. Dancing until in a complete perspiration, then going home through the damp air.

Sleeping on feather beds, in seven by nine bed rooms.

Surfeiting on hot and very highly stimulating suppers.

Marrying in haste, getting an uncongenial companion, and living the rest of life in mutual dissatisfaction.

Eating without time to masticate the food.

Allowing love of gain to so absorb our minds as to leave no time to attend to our health.

Following an unhealthy occupation because money can be made by it.

Tempting the appetite with niceties when the stomach says no.

Contriving to keep in a continual worry about something or nothing.

Retiring in the small hours and rising at noon.

Neglecting to take proper care of ourselves when a simple disease first appears.

How Gen. Grant Travels.

The editor of the Leavenworth Bulletin, who went some distance with Gen. Grant's party, on their westward trip, and who gives a glowing account of the General's enthusiastic reception along the route, says in conclusion:

"In traveling over the country, Gen. Grant has spread out before him a large map of all the new portion of the Union. He examines the country, makes inquiries about everything which is new, or which he does not understand; makes notes and corrections on his map, and hardly allows a moment to pass unimproved. He is a very pleasant companion, talking only when necessary, and always to the point. While all the other members of the party frequently indulged in cigars, it was noticeable that Gen. Grant did not smoke at all.

He told several good stories during the day, and seemed to enjoy the trip with genuine heartiness. Gen. Sherman, however, did most of the talking—he never stops—while Gen. Sheridan was full of life, fire and fun. He runs over with merriment, and has vitality enough in him to supply a whole army corps. Success to the tourists! At Watnege, Manhattan, Fort Riley, Junction City and Ellsworth, they must have had a sound Kansas welcome.

One thing more we will add. We have been out with many parties, public and private, on the new Pacific Railways, but this is the first one which had no intoxicating liquors of any sort with it. There were no baskets of wine, private bottles or flasks. If ever a man had the appearance of being strictly temperate that man is Gen. Grant. Hardly less remarkable than this was the fact that there was not an oath uttered by any man in that car yesterday.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS, the St. Albans Bank, a corporation, duly incorporated by the Legislature of the State of Vermont, located and doing business at St. Albans, in the county of Franklin, has made application to me, requesting me to issue a proclamation designating some day for the termination of the existence of said corporation;

And whereas, it has been made to appear to me that two-thirds of the legal vote of the stockholders of said corporation were given in favor of said application.

Now, therefore, I, Paul Dillingham, Governor of the State of Vermont, in conformity with said application, and the provisions of section eighty-six and eighty-seven of chapter eighty-nine of the General Statutes of Vermont, do hereby issue my proclamation, and declare that on the twenty-fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, the said corporation shall cease to exist as fully and with the same effect as if said charter expired by the limitation thereof.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto signed my name and caused the seal of the State of Vermont to be hereunto affixed, in Executive Chambers at Waterbury, this 23rd day of September, A. D. 1867, and of the independence of the United States the 91st.
